

Outdoor evangelistic meetings are a crucial element of the church-planting program

YOU can plant a new church in Africa!

Christian World Missions invites YOU to join us as we plant new churches all around the world! Since 1985, we have helped to start more than 400 churches in Ghana and Nigeria, alone. Be a part of a mission that is not just humanitarian, but through the power of the Holy Spirit, establishes "fruit that remains".

God will use you to not only change lives during the trip, but do so in a way that will have an effect on the people in those villages for years to come. The return on that investment is beyond anything you can ever imagine!

Join us! Help us plant new churches!

Join Our Annual Trip to Africa

Go and make disciples of all nations...

Christian World Missions

is ordained of God to go forth and produce “fruit that remains”. Whether it is in our own community, across the United States or around the world, our desire is to see people come to Christ, to make disciples and to care for their needs. Working with indigenous church leaders around the globe, we share the Good News of Jesus Christ so that people can be saved. After they surrender their lives to Christ, we invite them to join a new local fellowship of believers, a church, where they can be disciples and encouraged in their walk with Christ.

Perhaps God has been speaking to you about the need to share the Gospel in places where it has not been heard. Pray about joining us for an upcoming mission. No special skills are needed, but you must have a servant heart and a willingness to be used by God in any place He leads.

Structure of the Mission

Several months before our team arrives, lay persons are trained to serve as care-takers/pastors of the new churches. They begin work in each village, visiting house-to-house, holding Bible studies, praying with the sick, and promoting the evangelistic campaign.

When the U.S. team arrives, we join indigenous volunteers (preachers, nurses, doctors, construction workers) and are deployed into the villages. During the day, the teams offer free medical clinics, agricultural programs, children’s ministry and begin construction on pavilion churches. In the evenings, evangelistic meetings are conducted, which include music, preaching, testimonies, and prayer ministry.

The new churches are usually consecrated before our departure and begin meeting together immediately. Sponsors from the U.S. support them through Christian World Missions for the first three years, providing the pastor’s salary, a bicycle and Bible, and funds for their first meeting facility. Our African evangelists make regular visits to all of the churches to instruct and encourage.

We would love to come and share with your church or organization about our ministry in Africa and how you can be involved in this life-changing mission.
